The University of Alabama does not have any records available on audience ratings but those numbers should be on file at ABC, CBS, ESPN, WTBS and Jefferson-Pilot, syndicator in 1992 of the SEC football package.

Also, all contracts for football and basketball are held with outside agency. The University of Alabama is a member of the CFA and SEC which hold the rights to the games televised. Working within the parameters of those respective contracts, the University since 1990 has reserved the right to televise on pay-per-view games that are sellouts; in essence, expanding the stadium to reach those who may not have a ticket or may not be able to attend.

In regard to the inquiry about percentage of television revenues compared to ticket revenues, I am enclosing the following figures:

Year	FB Ticket Sales	FB TV Money	%	BB Ticket Sales	BB TV $	%
1990	$4,910,000	$ 965,031	19.6%	$713,000	$260,000	36.5%
1991	5,700,000	1,018,000	17.8%	846,000	343,000	40.5%
1992	5,760,000	1,772,000	30.8%	823,000	248,000	30.1%

In regard to the assertion charit the mublic has been expected for discounted by the expansion of breedests on cable

Alabama Basketball On Television

In 1965, the Southeastern Conference began its first-ever television package for college basketball games. Commissioner Bernie Moore and Eddie Eihorn put together an eight-game SEC "Game of the Week" package broadcast by TVS for the Southeastern United States to promote SEC basketball. John Ferguson and Joe Dean were the league's first announcers for the TV package.

Since then, basketball has expanded its coverage and is seen twice a week on a regional broadcast basis handled by Jefferson Pilot Sports. JP Sports features a Wednesday night and a Saturday afternoon telecast. Also, the SEC is televised nationally on Tuesday nights by SPN (8:40 p.m.-CST).

Since the inception of the TV package, Alabama basketball has been showcased on the tube 184 times with the Tide posting a 118-66 (.641) record. Below is a complete listing of Alabama's televised basketball games.
